1. Welcome to Northstar Technologies

Welcome to Northstar Technologies Pvt. Ltd. We are pleased to have you join our team. This guide explains what to expect before your first day, how to get access to the tools you need, who can help you, and what to focus on during your first 90 days.

Our goal is to make your transition clear and supportive. Your manager, onboarding buddy, People & Culture, and IT team will help you understand your role, meet colleagues, and become productive at a sustainable pace.

2. Your onboarding journey at a glance

Stage	Focus	Expected outcome
Before Day 1	Documents, account preparation, equipment	Joining formalities and setup plan are ready.
Day 1	Welcome, orientation, introductions	You understand the company, your team, and immediate next steps.
Week 1	Tools, policies, role overview, buddy support	You can access core systems and understand team routines.
Days 30–60	Training, initial tasks, feedback	You contribute to scoped work and understand expectations.
Days 60–90	Ownership, review, development plan	You agree on goals and next steps with your manager.

3. Before your first day

People & Culture will share your joining instructions and explain which documents are required for employment administration. Please complete requested tasks through the approved secure channel and contact the team if you are unsure why information is needed.

- Review and sign your offer letter or employment agreement and any required acknowledgements.
- Submit the identity, address, tax, bank, emergency-contact, and payroll information requested through the approved HR process.
- Confirm your reporting manager, joining date, work location, start time, and first-day contact.
- Check whether a company laptop, access card, headset, or other equipment will be provided and how it will be delivered or collected.
- Review the Employee Handbook, Leave and Attendance Policy, Code of Conduct, and IT Security Policy.
- Tell People & Culture about any accessibility or reasonable workplace setup needs.

4. Your first day

Your first day is designed to help you feel welcomed and understand the basics. Your exact schedule may vary by team and location. A typical first day includes:

- A welcome meeting with People & Culture and an overview of company values and ways of working.
- An introduction to your manager, team members, and assigned onboarding buddy.
- Collection or confirmation of company equipment and access credentials.
- Setup of company email, collaboration tools, HR platform, and role-specific systems.
- A review of your role, responsibilities, immediate priorities, and first-week calendar.
- Time to ask questions and resolve access or equipment issues.

5. People who will support you

Contact	How they help	When to contact
Reporting Manager	Role expectations, priorities, feedback, approvals, workload	Questions about your work, goals, deadlines, or team processes.
Onboarding Buddy	Informal guidance, team practices, introductions, everyday questions	You need help navigating the team or understanding how things work.
People & Culture	Joining formalities, employee records, leave, benefits, workplace concerns	Questions about HR processes, policies, or employee support.
IT Helpdesk	Laptop, account, application, network, and access issues	You cannot sign in, access a tool, or use company equipment.
IT & Information Security	Security guidance and incident response	You suspect phishing, account compromise, data exposure, or device loss.

6. Accounts, tools, and access

Access is provided according to your role and business requirements. You should receive instructions for the systems needed to perform your work. Common tools may include:

- Company email and calendar: Official communication, meetings, and scheduling.
- Collaboration platform: Team messaging, video meetings, and shared workspaces.
- HR platform: Personal details, attendance, leave requests, and policy acknowledgements.
- Document repository: Approved company documents and team knowledge.
- Project and task tools: Work planning, issue tracking, and delivery updates.
- Role-specific systems: Applications, development environments, customer tools, or operational platforms approved for your role.

Use only your assigned account. Set up MFA where required, never share passwords or verification codes, and request missing permissions through your manager or IT. Do not try to access information outside your authorized role.

7. Security and policy essentials

Every employee is responsible for protecting Northstar information and systems from the first day of employment. At minimum:

- Read and follow the IT Security Policy and Code of Conduct.
- Use strong unique passwords and MFA; never share credentials or access tokens.
- Keep company devices locked, updated, and protected by approved security tools.
- Store and share work files only through approved company systems.
- Do not upload confidential company, customer, or employee information to public or unapproved AI tools.
- Verify unexpected links, attachments, payment requests, and requests for sensitive information.
- Report suspected phishing, lost devices, unauthorized access, or accidental data sharing immediately to IT & Information Security.

8. Working hours, attendance, and leave

Your manager or joining instructions will confirm your working schedule, work location, and any team-specific arrangements. Record attendance using the approved system, communicate delays or unexpected absence promptly, and submit planned leave through the HR platform. Do not assume leave is approved until confirmation is received. Refer to the Leave and Attendance Policy (HR-POL-002) for sample entitlements and procedures.

9. Understanding your role and first 30 days

During your first month, focus on understanding what your team delivers, how work is planned, and how your role contributes to company goals. Work with your manager to clarify:

- Your key responsibilities, decision boundaries, and expected outcomes.
- The team's current priorities, customers or internal stakeholders, and delivery commitments.
- Required tools, systems, technical standards, and documentation.
- How to request reviews, approvals, support, and feedback.
- The first small task or deliverable that will help you learn the team's workflow.

10. Your first 30, 60, and 90 days

Period	Suggested focus	Manager check-in
First 30 days	Learn company policies, people, products, systems, team processes, and role expectations. Complete mandatory training and a starter task.	Discuss onboarding experience, access gaps, questions, and initial learning.
Days 31–60	Take on defined responsibilities, deliver a scoped task, participate in team routines, and build role-specific knowledge.	Review progress, quality, blockers, and any additional support needed.
Days 61–90	Increase ownership, contribute more independently, and identify development priorities.	Review early outcomes and agree on goals and a development plan for the next quarter.

11. Learning and mandatory training

Complete the onboarding modules assigned to you, which may include information security, privacy, code of conduct, workplace safety, and role-specific training. Your manager may also assign product, process, technical, or customer training. Record completion in the designated learning or HR platform. Ask your manager if a required module is unavailable or unclear.

12. Communication and team practices

Use approved company channels for work discussions. Keep your calendar and availability reasonably current, participate in relevant team meetings, document decisions that affect delivery, and raise blockers early. Ask questions when context is missing; seeking clarification is a normal part of onboarding.

13. Expenses, equipment, and workplace support

Follow the current expense and procurement procedures before making purchases on behalf of the company. Keep company equipment in good condition, report faults promptly, and do not lend devices or access cards to others. For workplace adjustments, facilities, or wellbeing support, contact People & Culture or your manager.

14. Common questions

What if I cannot log in on my first day?
Contact the IT Helpdesk and inform your manager. Do not use another employee's account.

Who approves my leave?
Your reporting manager reviews leave requests through the HR platform, with People & Culture supporting policy and record questions.

Where can I find company policies?
Use the approved company document repository or OnBoardIQ. Ask People & Culture if you cannot locate the latest approved version.

What if I receive a suspicious email?
Do not click links or open attachments. Report it through the approved phishing-reporting method or contact IT &

Information Security.

Who should I ask about role priorities?
Start with your reporting manager. Your onboarding buddy can also help with everyday team questions.
